

Academic and disciplinary ways of communicating

Below is a list of different academic/ disciplinary ways of communicating with others.

1. Look over the list underlining those particularly important in your field, and adding any others that seem important.
2. Review your list and tick the ones you think it would be useful for students to learn how to both read and write.
3. Discuss with the student a plan for gaining mastery of these.
  - Lab notebook
  - Field notebook
  - Journal research article
  - Journal review article
  - Commentaries (journal)
  - Book reviews (journal)
  - Letters to editors (journal)
  - Abstracts
  - Posters
  - Seminars/ talks
  - Grant applications (peer reviewed)
  - Grant applications (private foundation)
  - Contract research reports
  - Research grant reports
  - Operational and procedural manuals
  - E-mail dialogues
  - Lecture notes
  - Web/ electronic conferencing
  - Articles for non-science publications
  - Letters to editor (popular press)
  - CV
  - Letters of application
  - Other_____
  - Other_____
  - Other_____